Hotel AnaYela – MARRAKESH, MOROCCO

The inspiration for this quilt came from a self-guided Rhododendron Trail that follows the ridge southeast in Virginia along the crest of the mountain from the summit to Luther Rock. The trail is the most beautiful early in June when the Catawba rhododendrons are in bloom. This quilt uses many shades of pink, and cran-berry batiks as well as white cotton, yellow and blue batiks. The dark burgundy fabric is one inch by one inch square. The quilt will look stunning on a bed or couch by a sunny window.

It is not a utilitarian quilt and not be something you would wash. It is an art piece to enjoy on a wall or decoration on a special bed. The piece measures 82" x 98."

Signed and numbered serigraph by Leroy Neiman

With his handlebar mustache, trademark jumpsuits and always-present cigar, LeRoy Neiman was as splashy as the bold and bright paintings for which he was famous. Regardless of his subject – be it a sports hero, politician, movie star or musician – there was one constant in Neiman's work: color, color and more color. As he wrote in his 2012 memoir, "I'm a storyteller, only I tell my stories in a riot of color." Neiman's signature vibrant hues are on full display in this signed and numbered serigraph. "ROULETTE" is #234 of #300 and measures 36" wide X 50" high. Matted and chrome framed.

Tablas Creek Vineyard is a pioneer of California's Rhone movement. In 1989, after a decades-long friendship, the Perrin family of Château de Beaucastel and the Haas family of Vineyard Brands bought an estate in the limestone-rich Adelaida District of Paso Robles. The site was chosen for its similarities to Chateauneuf-du-Pape, and the vine material was imported from Beaucastel at the project's outset. Tablas Creek's vineyards are Biodynamic and were the first to be granted certification under the Regenerative Organic Certified Program. A mobile herd of sheep and alpacas builds healthy soils, while native yeast fermentation and aging in large neutral oak foudres produce Rhone-style varietal wines and blends of character and place.

These outstanding magnums are only matched by the experience you have during your special visit to the winery.

2013 PEAK Cabernet Sauvignon

3.0L 1 of 3 produced

10-year old library wine of the inaugural vintage produced by the late Denis Malbec.

Malbec's playground, as a child, was Château Latour in Pauillac. His grandfather Camille Malbec joined the winery staff in the 1920s, and his father, Jean-Noel, worked in the cellar from 1947 to 1994. Denis took his first steps in the cellar there and rode his bike through the vineyard rows. Malbec followed in his family's footsteps, becoming a cellar worker at Latour in 1993. He eventually became an enologist and cellar master, and met May-Britt, a Swedish sommelier.

After visiting California in 2000, the pair decided to leave Latour and start a wine consulting business. They traveled back and forth between France and California before settling in St. Helena in 2004. The grapes for this wine were farmed from certified organically farmed vineyards at the top of Atlas Peak. The wine received a perfect 10 out of 10 score from Jancis Robinson.

Aperture wines in different formats

Wine is an artistic expression as personal and universal as photography. So, it only makes sense that Andy and Jesse Katz would finally find a way to work together to produce some of the most stunning wines from California. Andy is a highly respected photographer who took his son Jesse on many trips around the world where he was immersed in fine wine from an early age. The experience stuck with him and today, Jesse is highly respected as well in his art form – producing some of California's most sought after wines – while Andy creates the photos that grace the Aperture labels and promotional materials.
